

The background image is a composite. The top half shows three men standing in front of a house that has been severely damaged by a disaster, with debris and bare trees visible. The bottom half shows a group of people, including a man in a FEMA uniform, working together to clear debris from a damaged building.

As we celebrate this moment of unprecedented peace and prosperity across our land we must not forget those who have suffered the awesome wrath of nature.

FEMA and Project Impact are changing the way America deals with disasters, giving people the tools to prepare and repair when disaster strikes.

— President Clinton
